York once known as 'the chocolate city' dating back almost 300 years, at its peak, over 14,000 people were employed in the city's famous chocolate factories - including Rowntree's site at Haxby Road, which opened in 1890, and was so big it had its own fire brigade, and Terry's Chocolate Works factory near York Racecourse, which opened in 1926.

Inspired by the cities history, Executive Chef Aaron Craig has created and developed a truly magical indulgence of mouth-watering flavours using some well-known classic inspiration of the nation's favourite festive chocolates.
